

Malinda grew up in Chattanooga and now lives in Nashville. She is Mental Health Service Provider and the clinical director for Nashville Treatment Solutions, a recovery based therapy program. Malinda also maintains a private practice. She has published curriculum called "Separate Prisons" for families of incarcerated. She has spent most of her professional life working with marginalized populations and directing non-profits.